

Hey! It's Me...Sarah!!! I Am About to Celebrate My 7th Birthday!

Thursday Dec 21st, Early Morning, Typing on my Dad's Laptop

Dear Friend,

Listen up, because this is serious. My name is Paisley Beck, and I woke up really early to sneak onto my daddy's laptop and type this up! I am about to celebrate my 7th birthday, and I want you to get in on the fun.

You are probably wondering how a 7 DAY OLD can even type this letter. Well, everyone could see I was extremely advanced when I was born on December 15, at 6:23AM in the morning. In fact, my parents were going on and on about how big and healthy I was, weighing in at a whopping 8lbs 12oz!

And we must have a really fancy house or something, because lately quite a few people have been coming over. Friends, grandparents, neighbors, etc....I guess it's kinda cool having all these people come around, except for the blinding machine they all carry. You know the one, the little black or silver box with buttons. When you hit the button this bright flash goes off and blinds anyone in its path...which is usually me!

My older brother Haven thinks I'm kind of strange. He's cute but he's a boy, and focuses much of his time on getting into things. And my sister Haley, she treats me like a baby doll....which I love!

I have learned a lot in the last six days that I've been in the world. I learned my dad's a chiropractor, and he spends a lot of time away from me helping others feel better. He did take a few days off to rest and spend time with me after my birth. But there were a few people who hurt so badly they could barely walk, so he quickly went back to the office to help them out.

I've decided to one day follow in my dad's footsteps, and help others too. In fact, me and my daddy were talking last night, and I told him of my great idea.....that also benefits you!!

His practice is really busy these days, and I overheard him saying something about Disc Decompression Treatments being a huge hit. People are having to wait in line to get on this equipment. Something about helping the herniated discs? Also, I heard mention of some VIP Massage Club Memberships going extremely fast, but only to the first 100 people to sign up.

My Great Idea!!!

To help celebrate my upcoming birthdays (7,8,9,10, etc days old!), Christmas, and New Years, you could get the deal of the YEAR! You see, my dad, Dr. Beck says a few people haven't been in to see him in quite a while. He thinks you're lost. Actually forgot your way to his office. And since he is so happy and excited that I am finally here, I talked him into letting you come in for your first day back for FREE! That's right, exam, x-rays, even an adjustment for FREE! Or maybe you would rather have a half-hour FREE MASSAGE? Well, you can pick either one!

Anyway... if I were you... I'd give him a call... RIGHT NOW. Everything is only free until January 15th (My 1 Month B-Day!)at the stroke of midnight. The number is 972-977-XXXX. And, I'd do it right now, before my dad changes his mind.....or his accountant convinces him to!!

Your pal,

Paisley Beck

P.S. I slipped in a VIP Massage Club coupon into this newsletter. My dad might get mad because massage appointments are really hard to get in for at his office, but hey, I'm still young, he'll forgive me.
